

Doing what you love rocks.

That is the first step to your success. The next step is to provide stability so you can keep doing what you love. An important part of that is to promote yourself through marketing and image management. How people perceive you is directly related to the marketing and design that represents you.

I love what I do. Web design. Print & apparel design. Photography. Creativity. Inspiring. It is my hope that I can do what I love to help you continue to do what you love.

In the past, I've had the opportunity to work with some pretty rad companies. Small businesses. Big entertainment companies. Everything from Emmy-award winning website experiences to mom & pop bakeries. I feel like my designs have had an impact.

Together, we can rock out a great website with all the features you will want and need. We will brainstorm something awesome for you to use as you leap into wild success doing what you love.

The next few pages have a few examples of work I have done for all sorts of clients. More is available on my website.

Through ad agencies in L.A. and New York, I was hired to design websites for entertainment properties.

This included website design for musicians, video game releases, dvd and theatrical movies, television dvd releases, news outlets, nationwide retail and fast-food chains.

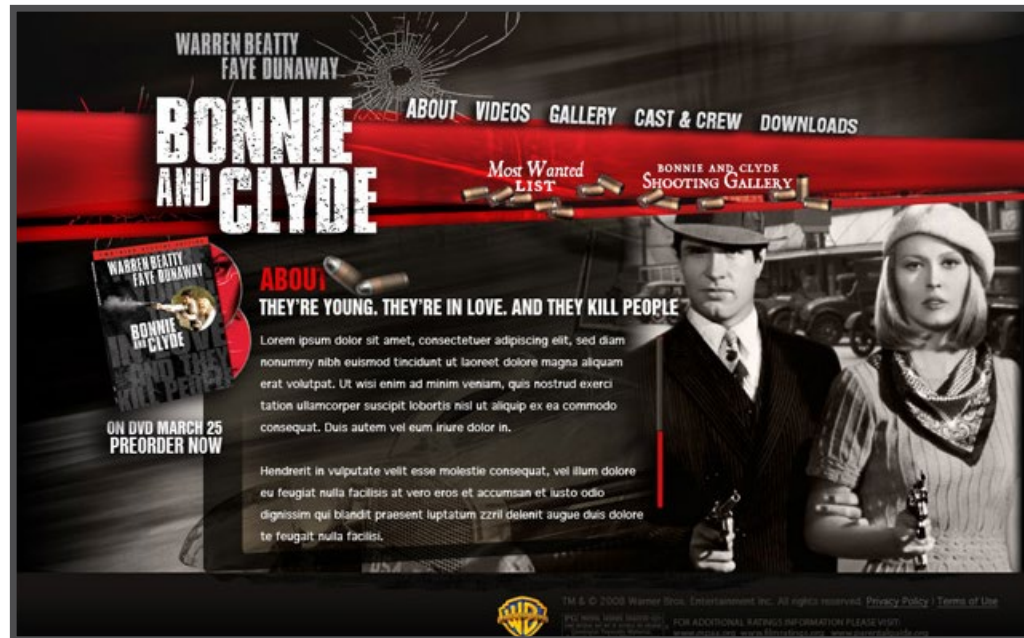

I dig old movies. Although this is not one of my favorite movies, when the opportunity arose to design a website for the release of the original Bonnie & Clyde.

Warner Bros. was looking for an 'outside the box' website to represent the classic film with Warren Beatty and the enchanting Faye Dunaway.

They were pleased with the results and I was stoked to have helped bring the vintage film back to life.

What are some of my other favorite 'DVD' release websites that I conceptualized and designed? My favs were The Illusionist, Devil Wears Prada, Flyboys, and We Are Marshall. I did about a dozen others, but those were my favorite sites.

These promotional sites are no longer active as the campaigns are over, but you can see screenshots at dustinsteller.com

Small businesses. Where we all go to eat, buy goods, use services. Where people realize their dreams. Where we stick it to the “man” and seek to grow our economy.

I love getting in on the ground floor of a business. Helping someone take their vision and make it tangible and real. I love being a part of that process.

It’s all worth it when my client says something like “That looks awesome!”

Here are a few of my more recent favorite small business websites: warriorca.org, themandatepress.com, altarbridal.com, canyonbakehouse.com, rainbowtown.org, stellerphoto.com and cocopenny.com

While I don't recommend Flash websites these days since you can't access them on Apple mobile devices, one of my all-time favorite concepts and designs was the HP/Dreamworks site for the original Kung Fu Panda.

The site was just plain fun. The general concept was relatively simple but not done on the web ... based on a turntable, the 4 tabs at the top spun the table to the different sections when clicked on. Each section had a unique interaction of it's own.

The interaction and animation that our production team put together according to my specs, concept and designs ended up being wildly successful and fun to play with.

Wipe out Colon Cancer!

Colon cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in the country.
A family history of colorectal cancer or certain other cancers, colon polyps, or other bowel diseases are all risk factors.

While it's one of the most common cancers, it's also very treatable and beatable, especially if caught early. If you're over age 50, have a family history of the disease, or are experiencing pain, discomfort or unusual bleeding, get checked today!
